“The only step we have to work perfectly...”

I have often heard in AA meetings that Step One is the only step we have to work perfectly. As I celebrate my 7-year anniversary in AA today, June 12, I have come to the realization that this is a tall order.

A fellow AA gave a lead in a meeting a few weeks back where he said he had been trying to get sober for years, and was just coming up on his 30 days this time around. His lead was about being "stuck on the dash". The gist of the lead was this; step one says, "We admitted we were powerless over alcohol- (dash) that our lives had become unmanageable." So while we may admit we can't control alcohol- (dash) we still try to manage our own lives. This is evident by how we hold on to the same behaviors, thought processes and rationalizations that we have always used. It was a great lead, and I want to share some more of my thoughts on the matter.

Early in my sobriety I had a sponsor who told me to call her at a certain time, go to a certain number of meetings a week, and to reach out to other people in AA. My first reaction was, this is expecting too much, I don't like calling people, I don't want to go to meetings.

I was fortunate, because I realized that my best thinking is what got me through the doors of AA to begin with. So I did what she suggested, at least most of it. Of course over the next seven years the suggestions got a lot harder. At some of them I balked, I thought I could find an easier, softer way. But I could not. It was true - I tried to hold on to some of my old ideas and the result was nil until I let go absolutely. I cannot reap the benefits of what AA has to offer until I open my heart to getting well someone else's way.

I recognize this resistance in many people around me in AA today. Either the meeting time isn't convenient, or the people aren't friendly, or the sponsor doesn't tell them what they want to hear, or it's about the kids, the job, the spouse, the illness, the car. The list is endless. This is what comes to mind when I hear these comments; I have a better idea of how to get sober than these people in AA so I'm just going to do it my way.

Until we stop trying to manage our own lives, we haven't even mastered Step One.

SERVICE IS FUN

I had the time of my life over the Father's Day weekend! I spent the whole weekend in the Public Information Tent at Libertyville Days. Now, of course, as P.I chair, I was obligated to be there. But after the experience I had, I have to say, I wouldn't have missed it for the world!

The weather was fantastic, and the company I kept, made it the best Fathers Day I had ever had. The best part was I didn't drink, and I can remember everything! Which, along with my family visiting and supporting me, were truly awesome gifts from my higher power!

Thanks to all of the A.A fellowship who supported us, the event was a huge success! We handed out at least a full rack and a half of our recovery information, along with lots of our business cards and meeting directories. I spent that whole weekend talking program with many new faces, who came to visit or just hang-out! There were many light hearted moments which tickled the funny bone, like the couple who inquired where they could find the "beer garden". We just replied "no" and wished them a good time!

Then there were the young kids posing for pictures next to our poster "Can You Spot The Alcoholic?" I think we're going to carry the message better than we thought, as I'm quite certain those pictures will appear on someone's "Facebook" page.

I honestly had the time of my life there, twelve stepping my way to the most peaceful and content weekend I can remember. Service is indeed the key, and I write this to encourage anyone to join a service fellowship; it should not be missed!

On the back of this newsletter are all the positions available come January 2013, as I and all others will be rotating out. Trust me, you will not regret it! Giving back to this program is the most rewarding feeling; a feeling that for me, fulfills that void of uselessness. I no longer ask myself - "What am I here for?" "There's got to be more to it than just not drinking, Right?"

Absolutely right!!
